

0:00

What's the best gift you've ever given?

0:03

Errm

0:04

Ohh, pfft

0:08

Ooh, that's a really good question. Uhhm...

0:11

Ooh, that does need some thinking about, erm...

0:15

I'm not sure I know the answer, erm

0:22

Hmmm

0:27

Hmm, the best gift I've ever given?

0:31

I've got no idea, to be honest

0:33

I think it was a perfume soap for my grandma

0:37

A little horse, for Christmas. Not a real horse, a plastic one. It was about that big.

0:43

Well, I think the best one was for my children, actually, and that was a climbing frame, and they played on it for years

0:51

Probably for my brother, I got him a trip to Amsterdam with his, with his friends. Erm, for his graduation, so yeah, but that was more for me really, cos I wanted to go with him

1:02

I got my nan and grandad erm, an afternoon tea at the Church where they got married fifty years ago, erm, and that was really nice, they really enjoyed it

1:14

I would want to do it, I'd want to give someone something really special

1:18

To change somebody's life, tha-that would be, be phenomenal

1:21

Sounds like a great idea

1:23

Well, if you could get something that made your life better, then that would probably be, a really good Christmas present

1:30

I don't know how I'd do that

1:32

It'd be pretty amazing

1:39

Well that would be an awesome thing to do

1:42

Well, I'm not sure if it's possible, but if it could be done, then yeah, that's an excellent idea

1:46

That'd be incredible, yeah, that would be a really good idea

1:49

If a blind person, was given for Christmas, their sight again... I don't think they'd ever really forget that Christmas

1:57

That would be the best Christmas present ever

2:00

Being able to give that gift back,... It's pretty special